Gov. Dave Heineman (left) and Chief Justice Mike Heavican addressed the Legislature this week.

Governor proposes tax relief, prison system reform

With an eye toward improving the future for the state's middle class, Gov. Dave Heineman proposed providing tax relief, reforming the state's "good time" law and rejecting the expansion of Medicaid during his State of the State address to lawmakers Jan. 15.

Heineman cited the state's growing economy and high income and property taxes as his motivation to reform the current tax code. He acknowledged the interim work of the Tax Modernization Committee but said that now was the time for action.

"We don't need more time to study this issue," he said. "We already know taxes are too high and high taxes are detrimental to economic growth. It's time for a straightforward conversation about property and income tax relief."

Heineman proposed a 10 percent decrease in agricultural land valuations, from 75 to 65 percent. He said the state's strong agricultural economy cannot continue to exist with unreasonably high property taxes.

"When agriculture fares poorly, so does rural Nebraska,"

Chief justice outlines achievements, new challenges

Focusing on juvenile justice reform and sentencing alternatives, Nebraska Supreme Court Chief Justice Michael Heavican delivered his State of the Judiciary address to the Legislature Jan. 17.

While the core mission of the judicial branch has remained the same since Nebraska became a state in 1867, Heavican said, the way the mission is carried out has changed over the years.

"And 2013 was a year of especially significant change for Nebraska's courts," he said.

The expansion of juvenile justice within the state's probation system has been one of the biggest challenges that the judicial branch has undertaken in recent years, Heavican said.

Legislation passed in 2013 required the state Office of Probation Administration to expand services to juveniles. Heavican said the implementation effort has involved the hiring of 171 new probation staff and encouraging local communities to provide additional services for juveniles

Heineman said. "However, when agriculture succeeds, rural Nebraska and main street Nebraska flourish."

The governor also proposed providing up to $500 million in tax relief over the next three years, citing the $1.2 billion currently in the state's cash reserve. He proposed lowering the top state tax income rate from its current level of 6.84 percent, saying that most middle class citizens would benefit from the decrease. The governor also cited Nebraska's "good time" law as an issue requiring immediate attention. The current practice of allowing violent criminals to automatically receive good time when they enter prison is flawed and dangerous, he said.

"Allowing the most violent criminals to enter into our state's prison system and have their judge-imposed sentences automatically reduced ...is not sound public policy," he said. "The public safety of our citizens should be priority number one and that should start with violent criminals being reand their families.

Heavican also called attention to the Court's efforts in adult sentencing alternatives. Community corrections alternatives to incarceration include drug and specialty courts and Probation's Specialized Substance Abuse Supervision programs, known as SSAS. These alternative sentencing programs provide varying levels of supervision along with services such as substance abuse treatment, employment, education, life-skills training and mentoring, he said.

A review of the SSAS program in 2012 found that 91 percent of the individuals who successfully completed the program remained crime-free one year later, Heavican said.

The chief justice also noted challenges facing the judicial branch, including guardianship reform for incapacitated adults and language barriers to court access.

A rapidly aging population has lead to a shortage of individuals available to serve as guardians for elderly, mentally ill or developmentally challenged Nebraskans, he said.

"The courts, however, look forward to working with this legislative body and other interested parties to alleviate that shortage," Heavican said.

The judiciary also has worked to ensure access to the courts for people with limited English language proficiency, he said. This effort included hiring two new interpreter coordinators and providing Spanish interpreters through video-conferencing for over 450 hearings last year.

"Our dedicated judges, support staff and probation employees are carrying out the Court's long-term mission to do justice, resolve disputes, provide equal protection to all citizens and ensure due process of law in all 93 of Nebraska's counties," Heavican said. ■

GENERAL AFFAIRS

Horse racing wager clarification bill stalls

Lawmakers voted Jan. 15 to bracket a bill intended to clarify pari-mutuel wagering rules.

LB642, introduced by Omaha

Sen. Heath Mello, would clarify that it is illegal for any person or entity to accept pari-mutuel wagering except at a licensed racetrack facility. The bill also Sen. Heath Mello would increase criminal penalties for accepting pari-mutuel wagers outside of a licensed racetrack facility.

Mello said the bill is directed at nonlicensed, advanced-deposit wagering systems. These systems, he said, are accounts set up with a licensed horse racing association or a third party, from which a player may make wagers.

Websites have been accepting parimutuel wagers online, Mello said, in violation of state law.

"In Nebraska, the only legal place to wager on horseracing is at a licensed racetrack," he said.

Currently, a nonlicensed person or entity operating an advanceddeposit wagering system for horse racing would be guilty of a Class I misdemeanor. The bill would increase the penalty to a Class IV felony.

Mello said other states have been successful in deterring illegal use of advanced-deposit wagering systems by increasing penalties.

Omaha Sen. Ernie Chambers opposed the bill, saying governors in some states likely would not extradite violators to Nebraska for prosecution.

"This bill, if it becomes law, will not be enforceable," he said.

Following the adoption of two amendments offered by Mello and the General Affairs Committee aimed at clarifying the bill's language, Chambers offered motions to indefinitely postpone and to bracket the bill.

Both motions failed, but Sen. Russ Karpisek of Wilber offered a second motion to bracket the bill until April 10, effectively killing the proposal. Although he supports LB642, Karpisek said Chambers' opposition to the bill was holding up debate on more important measures.

"I do this bracket motion begrudgingly," Karpisek said. "[This bill] does not rise to the time that we are spending on it."

The motion was adopted on a vote of 25-2.

GOVERNMENT, MILITARY & VETERANS AFFAIRS

County office candidates could automatically advance

Senators gave first-round approval Jan. 14 to a bill that would allow for automatic advancement in the case of a small pool of candidates for county office.

Under LB56, if the number of county office candidates from each party in the primary election does not exceed the number of candidates that may be nominated by the party, those candidates automatically would advance to the general election.

O'Neill Sen. Tyson Larson, the sponsor of the bill, said it would benefit all 93 counties in the state.

"[Primary election ballots] represent money taken away from other areas in the county budget," he said. "This would streamline the election process and lower overall costs associated with these elections."

Sen. Tyson Larson

Omaha Sen. Scott Lautenbaugh supported the bill, calling automatic advancement a common, reasonable idea.

"Anything we can do to simplify an election when there is no opposition would be a significant cost saving for the county," he said.

Hoskins Sen. Dave Bloomfield opposed the measure. He said there is value to placing the candidates' names on the primary ballot, no matter how few.

"Sometimes in small county races, candidates' names don't get out until election day," he said. "I firmly believe that we need to put everyone's name out there who is interested in serving, even if unopposed, so voters know who will be running in the general election."

Bloomfield introduced and later withdrew a motion to indefinitely postpone the bill.

Following the adoption of a technical amendment, senators voted to advance the bill to select file on a 28-5 vote.

Radon resistant construction proposal advanced

Lawmakers gave first-round approval Jan. 15 to a bill that would require all new homes in Nebraska to include radon resistant construction.

As introduced by Omaha Sen. Bob Krist, LB13 would have applied to all new residential construction beginning Jan. 1, 2014.

A Health and Human Services Committee amendment, adopted 27-0, extended the deadline to Jan. 1, 2016. Among other technical changes, the amendment also clarifies that any regulation regarding radon resistant construction adopted by a county, city or village must be at least as stringent as that adopted by the state Health and Human Services Department (DHHS).

Krist said the measure would protect families from radon, a radioactive element found in uranium in the soil. Nebraska has the third highest radon emission rate in the United States, he said, and radon exposure is the number one cause of lung cancer in nonsmokers.

Krist said radon resistant construction if far less costly than retroactively fitting a home for a radon mitigation system. An active system installed after a home is built can cost as much as $4,000 to $6,000 he said.

"At the new construction phase," Krist said, "the cost is less than $1,000."

Grand Island Sen. Mike Gloor supported the bill.

"With this, we're talking about a public health issue that can be addressed with a modest cost," Gloor said.

Under the bill, DHHS would be responsible for coordination, oversight and implementation of measures to mitigate the risks of radon in residential dwellings.

The bill also would create a Radon-Resistant Building Codes Task Force that would include homebuilders, home inspectors, realtors and medical professionals, among others.

Krist offered and then withdrew an amendment that would have further extended the bill's implementation date, which he said may be adjusted during the next round of debate.

LB13 advanced to select file 28-0.

Child care subsidy changes advanced

Lawmakers advanced a bill from general file Jan. 15 that would create an income disregard for determining continued eligibility for the state's child care subsidy program.

LB359, sponsored by Omaha Sen.

Tanya Cook, would increase the percentage of a household's gross earned income that must be disregarded when determining continued eligibility for the subsidy.

Sen. Tanya Cook

As introduced, the bill would have created a graduated income disregard that increased with each year of eligibility. After 12 months in the program, 7 percent would be disregarded. The percentage would increase to 15 percent after 24 months and, after 36 months, a household's gross income would be treated the same as at initial eligibility for the program.

An amendment offered by Cook, adopted 35-0, eliminated those provisions. Instead, the bill would set the income disregard at 10 percent upon redetermination.

Cook said the change reflects how the child care subsidy works in practice. The average family utilizes the subsidy for seven months, she said. As a result, many families who qualify for the program would not benefit from a gradual annual income disregard.

Cook said the amended bill would allow the approximately 750 families in Nebraska who receive the subsidy to earn modest raises and promotions at work without losing access to needed child care.

Scottsbluff Sen. John Harms agreed, saying the current system sets working poor families up for failure by penalizing their success.

"This (bill) will provide our families with the necessary assistance and with hope," Harms said.

Lawmakers advanced LB359 to select file 37-0.

Peace officer protection bill advances

Disarming a law enforcement officer would be specifically acknowledged as a crime in Nebraska, under legislation advanced by the Unicameral Jan. 15.

LB128, introduced by Lincoln

Sen. Colby Coash, initially would have made the offense of disarming or the attempt of disarming a peace officer a Class III felony punishable Sen. Colby Coash by up to 20 years imprisonment and a $25,000 fine.

A Judiciary Committee amendment, adopted 26-0, instead would create a misdemeanor offense of intentionally and knowingly removing a firearm or weapon from a peace officer in uniform or a peace officer displaying a badge of authority who is engaged in the performance of their official duties. Considered a Class I misdemeanor, the offense would be punishable by a maximum fine of $1,000 and up to one year imprisonment.

Disarming a peace officer represents a "significant threat of injury to the officer and those around him," Coash said. He added that peace officers are attacked more often than people realize, noting that in 2012, Lincoln police were attacked 60 times.

A technical amendment to the committee amendment by Omaha Sen. Ernie Chambers was approved on a 25-0 vote.

Senators voted 26-0 to advance LB128 to select file.

Plan for electronic tax levy pilot program advances

The state tax commissioner could electronically file levies against personal property under a bill advanced from general file Jan. 14.

LB33, introduced by Kearney Sen. Galen Hadley, would authorize the state Department of Revenue to contract with in-state financial institutions for an electronic levy pilot project. Hadley said the project

Sen. Galen Hadley represents a way for the department to use technology to lower administrative costs.

"Significant progress has already been made," Hadley said, "but additional efficiencies can be achieved through a partnership with the private sector."

The bill also makes a number of changes, including:

- allowing the department to waive the traditional three-year statutory lien period when a taxpayer has entered into an agreement to satisfy an overdue tax liability;
- repealing the individual income tax return check off for contributions to the Campaign Finance Limitation Cash Fund; and

• authorizing the imposition of a 25 percent penalty for filing a late tobacco products tax return.

A committee amendment, adopted 29-0, removed a provision that would have allowed financial institutions to levy against real property.

Senators voted to advance the bill on a 35-0 vote.

Senators advance bill to deter livestock waste spills

Drivers who spill livestock excrement on highways in urban areas would face stiffer penalties under legislation advanced by senators Jan. 14.

LB174, introduced by Omaha Sen. Heath Mello, would amend the Nebraska Rules of the Road by increasing the minimum fine to $250 for any driver who spills manure or urine from a vehicle on any highway located within the corporate limits of a city of the metropolitan class. The violation is a Class IV misdemeanor and currently carries a minimum $100 fine.

Sen. Heath Mello

Manure spilling from livestock trailers leaving south Omaha's stockyards "has plagued my part of the state for generations," Mello said. "These spills are not only a potential public health hazard, but also have a tendency to cause numerous traffic accidents."

State statute regarding load spillage needs to be amended, Mello said, because most of the manure spills that occur near Omaha's meat-packing plants happen on state highways. Although Omaha also has city ordinances regarding load spillage, he said, the Nebraska

State Patrol is the primary law enforcement agency currently issuing tickets.

Additionally, Mello said, it is the state's responsibility to clean up the waste spills.

"We need to be cognizant of the fiscal impact every time a spill is cleaned up," he said.

Mello said the "fairly modest" fine increase is a result of collaboration among his office and the Nebraska Trucking Association, the Nebraska Cattlemen and the South Omaha Environmental Task Force.

Hoskins Sen. Dave Bloomfield opposed LB174, saying the increased fine could damage Omaha's meat-packing industry.

"To risk jobs in Omaha to raise a fine is not a good idea," he said.

O'Neill Sen. Tyson Larson agreed, saying a livestock hauler may make only $250 on a load.

If the packing industry was at risk, their representatives would have testified at the committee hearing, Mello said.

"Any illusion this would impact the packing industry is a farce," he said.

Following more than four hours of debate spanning Jan. 13 and 14, lawmakers advanced LB174 to select file on a 37-4 vote.

Vehicle identification bill advances after cloture

Public safety volunteers would be allowed to use special lights to identify their vehicles under legislation advanced by lawmakers Jan. 17. The bill was the subject of a two-day filibuster requiring a cloture motion to allow a vote.

LB399, introduced by Omaha Sen. Scott Lautenbaugh, would allow volunteer members of public safety or crime prevention organizations to use rotating or flashing amber lights on any motor vehicle, as authorized by law enforcement.

The bill originally would have required sheriff and police departments to authorize the use of the lights, but it was changed during debate to assign county attorneys that responsibility. Adopted 34-0, the amendment brought by Lautenbaugh replaced the bill and would require county attorneys to register and authorize volunteer members of public safety groups before they are allowed to display the lights.

The amendment was based on a previous version introduced and later withdrawn by Columbus Sen. Paul Schumacher.

Currently, the Nebraska Rules of the Road state that flashing amber lights may be displayed on vehicles used for specific purposes such as military, public utility maintenance, towing, vehicle maintenance, Civil Air Patrol, oversized load, railroad, emergency management and storm spotting.

Lautenbaugh called the bill "a common sense, straightforward and cost-free way to allow citizens to protect their own neighborhoods from crime." The use of amber lights on vehicles by volunteer groups lets residents know the patrol is active in their community and deters criminal activity, he said.

Lautenbaugh said the idea for the bill was brought to him by a member of the Omaha Coalition of Citizen Patrols, which had been using amber lights for several years.

Omaha Sen. Ernie Chambers opposed the bill, arguing that citizen patrol groups do not require amber flashing lights to adequately perform their duties. He filed numerous technical amendments and motions extending debate on the bill for eight hours spanning Jan. 16 and 17.

"This bill in no way enhances what these groups are doing now," he said.

Omaha Sen. Steve Lathrop also opposed the bill, calling the flashing lights a "symbol of authority." He said their use by volunteer groups could mislead people.

"When you give people the appearance of authority, but without proper training, you are inviting problems," he said.

Lautenbaugh moved to invoke cloture, or cease debate, and senators obliged on a 36-7 vote. LB399 then was advanced to select file on a 25-20 vote.

Vehicle flood damage bill advances

Lawmakers gave first-round approval Jan. 14 to a bill intended to protect consumers from unknowingly purchasing flood damaged vehicles.

As introduced by Lincoln Sen.

Bill Avery, LB446 would amend the Motor Vehicle Certificate of Title Act to provide a definition of a waterdamaged vehicle.

> Sen. Bill Avery Avery said the measure was intended to address concerns that flood damaged vehicles may be brought into Nebraska for sale without buyers knowing of the damage. He said the state currently has no provision for titling vehicles as flood damaged.

"Flood damaged cars are often sold at insurance auctions," Avery said, and then cosmetically cleaned and resold to unsuspecting consumers. "They might actually look brand new, but the working parts are damaged and just waiting to break down," he said.

A Transportation and Telecommunications Committee amendment, adopted 37-0, replaced the bill and would add flood damaged vehicle to the definition of salvage within the Act.

As amended, the bill would define a flood damaged vehicle as one that has been submerged in water to the point that rising water has reached over the floorboard, entered the passenger compartment and caused damage to any electrical, computerized or mechanical components.

The designation of flood damaged would not apply to a water-damaged vehicle in which no electrical, computerized or mechanical components were damaged by water or to a vehicle in which damaged components were repaired or replaced as indicated by an insurance claim representative or vehicle repairer.

Under the bill, any vehicle designated as flood damaged would receive a salvage title.

Omaha Sen. Ernie Chambers supported the bill, calling it the type of consumer protection that lawmakers should be eager to engage in.

"This is not undue governmental intervention," he said. "This is what the government ought to do."

LB446 advanced to select file on a 40-0 vote.

Proposed change to redevelopment program terms advances

Lawmakers gave first-round approval Jan. 14 to a measure intended to facilitate the use of tax increment financing (TIF) in Nebraska cities and villages.

LR29CA, introduced by York Sen. Greg Adams, would place a proposed constitutional amendment on the November 2014 general election ballot. If approved by voters, the amendment would change how cities and villages are able to use TIF to rehabilitate substandard properties.

The amendment would replace a current requirement that property be designated "substandard and blighted" with a requirement that it be "in need of rehabilitation and redevelopment."

An Urban Affairs Committee amendment, adopted 37-0, removed a provision that would have extended from 15 to 20 years the maximum length of time to repay a TIF bond.

Adams said TIF projects sometimes are hindered when owners of neighboring properties balk at the designation of the property to be redeveloped as substandard and blighted. Often they believe that the designation will reflect poorly on their own property, Adams said, adding that replacing the language may help. Kearney Sen. Galen Hadley agreed, saying that in his time as a mayor and city council member it was difficult to talk to citizens about the substandard and blighted designation.

"There's a negative connotation that really goes with those terms," Hadley said.

Adams said the language change also would remind cities that the intent of TIF is limited to rehabilitation and redevelopment.

"I think this is a step in the right direction to clarify, to refocus," he said.

Columbus Sen. Paul Schumacher offered and later withdrew an amendment that would have removed all qualifying language and would have added economic development projects to the proposal.

Schumacher said the change would "cut away the façade" that there are limits on how cities and villages can use TIF. He said TIF was not intended as an economic development tool, but has been misused by some cities and villages for that purpose.

Sen. Ernie Chambers of Omaha also expressed concern about the proposal. Allowing only areas classified as substandard and blighted to be eligible for TIF guards against misuse, he said.

"If we have constitutional language that is being circumvented by entities, don't change the constitution – change their conduct," Chambers said. He suggested that lawmakers consider changing state law rather than the constitution if they have concerns about TIF misuse.

Chambers offered and later withdrew a motion to indefinitely postpone the resolution.

LR29CA advanced to select file 31-0.
